No one likes being lonely. Welcome to the 21st Century and online dating apps and social networking sites. Sounds like a dream come true. Sometimes it is a dream come true and sometimes it is your worst nightmare.

Romance scams can happen to anyone, but the age group with the largest loss is for those 70 years and older. The average loss for seniors is a staggering $9000. In comparison, those ages 18-29 lost an average of $750. The targets tend to be older, widowed, or divorced women. The highest number of victims according to the FBI come from California, Texas, Florida, New York, and Pennsylvania.

Special Agent Christine Beining of the FBI states that the intention of the scammer is to create a relationship with the victim as quickly as possible. The scammer tries to make themselves appear to be an average person. The goal is to gain trust, maybe even propose marriage, but the victim will never meet the "romance" in person even if plans are made. According to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), in 2020 romance scams cost victims more the $300 million. That is a significant increase from 2019.

A fake dating site is created to target individuals establishing relationships by talking, chatting, or even texting. Once some rapport is built, the hammer drops asking for money.

Some of the deceptions romance scammers tell to would be "love interests" include:

- Working on an oil rig
- Stationed in the military
- Being a physician with a global organization
- Living or traveling outside of the United States.

Reasons why the scammers "need money" include:

- Pay for travel expenses
- Pay for medical expenses
- Pay Customs fees, visas, or other official record fees
- Pay off gambling or other debt

Asking for payment by wire or reloading cards keeps the scammer anonymous and they can get the money fast. Below are some of the ways scammers ask for funds:

- Wire money
- Reload gift cards from companies such as:

Amazon
Google Play
iTunes
Steam
Zelle

Signs of a Romance Scam

- Professing love swiftly.
- Claims to be working abroad or stationed in the military.
- Asking for money.
- Need money urgently for medical or travel reasons.

Don't Become a Victim

- Research the individual's photo and profile searching online to see if the same material has been used somewhere else.
- Take it slow and easy, ask lots of questions.
- If it's too good to be true, it probably is.
- Be aware if the "romancer" asks you to go "offline," such as texting, private emails, and messages.
- Be aware of requests for inappropriate photos, financial or other information that could be used to blackmail you.
- Be suspicious if promises to meet are met with excuses to cancel meeting plans.
- NEVER send money to someone you don't personally know.

What Should You Do If You Are Scammed?

1. Don't be hurried by the scammer. Confide in a trusted friend or family member.
2. NEVER transfer funds from your accounts, purchase gift cards, reload gift cards or wire money. The funds will be gone FOREVER.
3. Contact your financial institution immediately if you believe you were scammed
4. Report the incident:
  - The online dating site or app
  - The Federal Trade Commission: ftc.gov/complaint
  - The FBI: ic3.gov - Internet Crime Complaint Center
